

Many other surveys that are conducted within individual academic areas consistently support the same results. In 2006, the SOE implemented a First Year Teacher's Survey to assess former students' sense of professional preparation and overall satisfaction with their education at WNMU. Overall, teacher graduates feel that they received a good education. A number of other results reflect positive student satisfaction, including growing numbers of students utilizing residence halls on campus, childcare support services, and safety.